ALDERDICE HELD ON FORGERY CHARGE BIC BEN BEATEN SPECIAL EXTRA

Brother of Young Man Who Was Made the Beneficiary of Aged Woman Recluse of Harlem Taken Into Custody on Accusation of Fraud.

Warrant Was Obtained by Assistant District-Attorney Krotel, and the Prisoner Was Taken to the Tombs to Await the Arrival of a Bondsman, Attorney James S. Alderdice was arrested this afternoon on a warrant charging him with forging the deeds which purported to dispose of the property of Mary J. Oliver, the Harlem miser.

Alderdice was just leaving his office, at No. 304 Broadway, with a satchel in his hand when he was arrested by Detective Flood, of the District-Attorney's staff. It was believed that Alderdice was about to

The prisoner was first taken to the Elizabeth street station, and from there to the Centre Street Court for arraignment.

Assistant District-Attorney Krotel, who has had the Oliver investigation in charge, applied to Magistrate Breen for the warrant.

Mr. Krotel asked for the warrant in the belief, based upon a handwriting expert's report, that the signature to various deeds transferring $100,000 worth of property to Mary S. Alderdice was forged.

When arraigned in court Alderdice, through his counsel, George Simpson, of the firm of Levy & Unger, entered a plea of not guilty. Assistant District-Attorney Krotel asked that bail be fixed at $5,000, saying that the offense charged was tantamount to forgery in the first degree. Mr. Simpson wanted bail fixed at $2,000, and a compromise was reached at $3,500. -morrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock was the time set for the examination. as taken to the Tombs to wait the arrival of a bondsman.

Mary Alderdice is the daughter of Rev. James Alderdice, who lived next door to the hovel occupied by Mrs. Oliver in Second avenue and acted as her secretary and man of affairs. He was found dying in the yard of Mrs. Oliver's home on the day she was found dead in her bed.

The deeds were executed before James S. Alderdice,

Deeds. He is a son of Rev. James Alderdice.

Mrs. Lydia Koch, a real estate dealer, of No. 56 Pine street, who figured in the real estate transfers of Mrs. Oliver, was a caller at the office of the District-Attorney to-day. She was accompanied by her attorney, and told at length of her connection with the matter.

Late this afternoon Assistant District-Attorney Krotel issued a sub-na, returnable to-morrow, for Dr. John A. O'Brien, of No. 305 East One Hundred and Sixteenth street, who was Mrs. Oliver's physician. A rumor was current that Mr. Krotel was not satisfied with the stories of Mrs. Oliver's death and that Dr. O'Brien will be closely questioned about it to-

BOB AMMON OUT OF THREE STEDEKERS PRISON FOR A DAY

Law Suits-He Has Lost Twenty-Eight Pounds, but His Health Is Good.

Robert A. Ammon came down from Sing Sing to-day under the chaperon age of State Detective Jackson in obedience to a writ of habeas corpus to appear as a witness before Justice Truax in the trials in the Supreme Court of two suits to recover money the plaintiffs said they lost in the get-rich-quick schemes of Alfred Goslin and others. Col. Ammon appeared in the same suit of black doeskin he wore when he 'went away," but he looked in it like Shakespeare's 'lean and slippered pan-taloon, his youthful hose a world too wars of the pool-room in West Broad-taloon, his youthful hose a world too way. The raids were of the sensational wide for his shrunk shank."

His hair is now a grizzled gray and cut short, while his mustache is gone.
"But I am feeling fine," said he. "But I am feeling fine," said he.
"Never felt finer in my life; keep good hours, eat regularly; no high living; sleep like a top. Getting all the bad stuff out of me; lost twenty-eight pounds—all bad stuff; breadbasket all gone; I'm as hard as nails all over."

The cases in which Ammon's testimony is needed will not be reached until to-morrow, and State Detective Jackson said he should take his charge back this afternoon.

No one met Col. Ammon at the station, and only his former counsel yisited him while he was in court.

The dead are Fowler, who was forty-two years old: Elizabeth, his wife, thirty-six years old; Wilhelmina, thir teen-years old; Martha, five years, and Willie, six months old. George, the oldest child, who is fifteen, escaped by jumping from a window of the second floor. He landed safely on the ground below, sustaining only slight injuries.

The Fowlers lived in a two-story frame house in the heart of the yillage. The entire family was asleep when the the smell of smoke and discovered that the chimney had caught fire. Not

Nothing was seen of Fowler or the other children, but when the building fell down and the fire had practically burned itself out the charred remains of their bodies were found in the ruins.

Business at a Standstill. Business at a Standatili.

In the village the tragedy has had the effect of bringing all business to a standatili to-day. Crowds are gathered around the ruins of the Fowler house. Fowler was one of the best-known residents of the place. He was a member of the Patroite Sons of America and of other fraternal ordors.

His life, the life of his wife and of two of the dead children were insured, and this money will be all that the boy George will have in the world.

The 'dead' children, except the infant, all attended the village school and were among the brightest and prettlest of the pupils there.

Trainers at Garden Grind Set Out Queer Looking Bottles as Night Approaches— Long Hours of Riding Begins to Tell on the Weary Legged Racers.

FASTEST SPRINTING OF THE RACE DURING THE AFTERNOON.

Moran, After Last Lap, Keeps Leaders on the Jump All the Time -- Experts Pick Leander to Carry Off First Honors-Bedell Not Suffering.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, Dec. 8.—The "dope" bottles will come nto play to-night at the big six-day grind.

The fearful strain on the struggling riders is becoming too much for numan nature to stand, and the trainers of both the foreign and the Amerian riders are getting out the queer looking bottles that have played such an mportant part in races of the past.

Up to the present there has not been any use of "dope" in the race. The ace has not been fast enough to warrant it, but the strain of keeping in the addle so long is now beginning to tell, and to-night's racing will be a tough one for every man in the big grind.

BEDELL LOOKS O. K.

Menus Bedell appeared on the track at 3 o'clock, his face wreathed in miles and his shoulders showing no signs of scaffolding insertions. He is without pain and rides easily. As soon as he relieved his brother he went well to the front of the bunch.

Nine teams are now tied, and the present status will hold for a while The colored team loses a lap now and then, and this brings out som thuslasm from riders and spectators.

Leander quickened his speed, however, and soon cut down the difference. Gougoltz then subsided and joined the bunch.

MISS GAST COMES OUT.

At 4.15 all the riders quit the track for a rest while Margaret Gast, with flaxen hair, gave an exhibition of motor-paced riding. Just before the riders quit they struck up a hot two-mile sprint that tested the speed and ler, who only clung the tighter to her lettle one when advised to throw it down, was seen to fall back into the Butler team. Butler had just relieved Leander, and Keegan came in to give Moran a rest. Gougoltz was also there, and Breton showed that he wanted to be included in the reckoning. RED HOT SPRINTING.

> Butler and Keegan let drive with terrific speed, and the bunch trailed out in a line. Then they all put power in their pedalers and the most spirited race of the day was run. Positions changed like wild fire. Menus Bedell joined in, and Bobby Walthour helped some. Round and round the men went, and when the scorers summed up results the colored team. Hedspeth and Dove, were lacking another lap. They have proved themselves the record team at losing laps.

LOOKS LIKE LEANDER-BUTLER.

George Leander and nis team mate, Nat Butler, already look like the inners of the big six-day grind. Their most dangerous rivals are Moran and Keegan, and they are a lap

Leander is riding in easier fashion than any of his competitors. Out in front or in a safe position he holds his own, never giving way an inch. When the riders try to steal a march on him he spurs up his speed and only slows down when the rest drop into the slow, steady pace of the grind.

The wine popped. The uncrowned hero drank thereof, mounted his wheel and was off. Into the tired legs of the rider the champagne sizzled, and the awakening excitement of the day proper
